No. 161 NEW DELHI, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1954

MINISTRY OF LABOUR

RESOLUTION

New Delhi, the 17th September 1954

No. LR-100(56)/54.—By an order, dated the 24th August 1954, the Central Government made certain modifications in the Decision of the Appellate Tribunal, dated the 28th April 1954 in the appeals filed against the Award of the All India Industrial Tribunal (Bank Disputes), Bombay, on the industrial disputes between banking companies and their workmen. That decision, which had to be taken within the extended statutory time-limit of 120 days available for the purpose, was naturally based on the information then available to Government as to the probable effects of the Appellate Tribunal's Decision. The information available related to figures (verified by the Reserve Bank of India) about a certain number of banking companies of all classes selected as a representative sample for the purpose and certain unverified estimates in regard to the numbers of bank employees prejudicially affected by the Appellate Tribunal Decision. It is considered desirable to have the matter further investigated so as to enable Government to assess more fully the probable effects of the Appellate Tribunal's Decision and the effect of the modified Decision on the individual units of the banking sector to which it applies. Government have accordingly decided to institute a fact-finding enquiry and to entrust Shri Justice G. S. Rajadhyaksha, Judge, Bombay High Court, with it.

2. The terms of reference of Shri Justice Rajadhyaksha will be as follows:—

(1) to enquire into and ascertain the effects on the emoluments which the employees were in receipt of prior to August 1954,

(a) of the Appellate Tribunal Decision without modification,

(b) of the Appellate Tribunal Decision as modified by Government's Order No. S.R.O. 2732, dated the 24th August 1954,

(2) to ascertain

(a) the additional burden on individual banks that would have been caused by the Appellate Tribunal Decision over the expenses under the frozen Sen Award,

(b) the extent and amount of relief obtained by them as a result of the modifications made by Government,

(c) the additional expenditure now to be borne by banks under the modified decision over the expenditure incurred under the frozen Sen Award/that would have been incurred under the Sastry Award.

(3) to scrutinise the information already collected and to collect further information relevant to the consideration of these issues;

(4) to recommend, having regard to the facts ascertained and to the need for ensuring an equitable treatment to bank employees consistent with the capacity to pay of the various classes of banking companies or individual units,

(a) whether the Appellate Tribunal Decision, as modified should be continued,

(b) whether the Appellate Tribunal Decision should be restored and if so, whether fully or in part,

(c) whether the Appellate Tribunal Decision should be enforced with any other modifications considered necessary.

In considering this, due regard should also be paid to the desirability of avoiding widespread closures of banking companies or their branches, to the necessity to promote development of banking in the country generally and in rural areas in particular and to any possibilities of effecting economies in the expenses of banking companies.

(5) to consider and recommend what special modifications, if any, are necessary in the Decision in order to encourage the spread of banking facilities in the Class IV areas of Part 'B' States and Part 'C' States other than Delhi, Ajmer and Coorg.

K. N. SUBRAMANIAN, Joint Secretary.

APPENDIX NO. VII

General Questions put to the Representatives of Banks and Employees

A. Questions put to the Representatives of Banks

1. Would the bankers like their disputes with their employees to be decided on a national basis class-wise or would they prefer to have the said disputes considered individually?

2. How should the capacity of a bank to pay be judged—class-wise or bank-wise?

Dealing with the banks class-wise, if it is found that in a given class some banks can bear the burden of the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision while some others cannot bear the said burden, what would be the proper method to deal with these two kinds of banks? Would the banks be justified in invoking the principle of non-discrimination and to contend that the whole class should be exempted from the liability to pay according to the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision?

3. If the capacity to pay is considered bank-wise and it is found that some banks in a given class can pay and some cannot pay, would it not affect the credit of the latter category of banks in case the Commission recommends that they should be exempted from the liability of the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision?

4. For considering the capacity of the banks to pay, would it be reasonable to project pro-forma the relevant figures for the year 1955 and determine the capacity of the banks to pay? Would it be reasonable in this context to assume that the gross earnings of the banks would be slightly higher in 1955 than in 1954?

5. Would it not be possible for the banks to increase their income by effecting a slight reduction in the interest paid on deposits, or by charging a slightly higher rate of interest on advances, or by levying a reasonable service charge? Would it not be possible for the banks to increase their surplus by reducing to a slight degree the dividend paid to the shareholders? Would these steps, if taken, affect the credit of the banks even if it is known to the members of the public and the shareholders respectively that they have been taken for the purpose of meeting the bank obligations to their employees in the matter of paying them their fair wages?

6. Is the creation of an additional class of area known as area 4 under the Government Modification justified? Is the provision for total exemption of a sub-area in area 4 justified?

7. What do the banks say about the claim made by the employees that the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision should be enforced, but without cuts?

B. Questions put to the Representatives of Employees

1. Would the workmen like the banking dispute to be settled by a national Tribunal after classifying the banks as the Tribunals have done so far, or would they prefer the dispute in respect of each bank to be separately considered?

2. In case the Commission finds that some banks are in a difficult position, would the workmen be prepared to give up their claim for accumulation of medical relief as allowed by the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision?

3. In case the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision is restored, prima facie the surplus profit would be correspondingly reduced and the bonus awardable would likewise be reduced. Would the workmen prefer to have bonus unimpaired or to have the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision restored with the distinct possibility of the bonus amount being reduced?

4. Even if some banks can pay according to the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision in a given class, how can the decision be restored if the Commission finds that some banks in the same class are unable to pay? Would that not involve discrimination?

5. How do the workmen justify their claim that the cuts allowed by the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision should be restored?

6. Is the direction given by the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision that D class banks should be automatically promoted to C class justified?

APPENDIX No. VIII

Graph showing average total emoluments of a bank employee (clerical) at the start of his career according to different awards.

The graph facing this page purports to test the adequacy of the total emoluments of a clerical employee in a bank at the start of his career under different awards in different areas on the basis of the following two yardsticks:

(i) The minimum subsistence level for a family of 2·25 consumption units as worked out on the basis of the figures given by the Rau Court of Enquiry after allowing for full neutralisation of the rise in the cost of living between 1946 and 1953.

(ii) The requirements of a lower middle-class family of 2·25 consumption units at the 1953 price level according to the estimates made by the late Hon'ble Shri Justice Rajadhyaksha in his Postal award.

APPENDIX No. IX

Graph showing average total emoluments of a bank employee (clerical) during the entire period of his service according to different awards.

The graph facing this page shows the average total emoluments per year of a clerical employee in a bank during the entire period of his service according to different awards. The emoluments include basic pay, dearness allowance and house rent allowance. For the purpose of the Sen award the dearness allowance has been estimated on the basis of a cost of living index of 150 (1944 100). At this level of the index the dearness allowance under the Sastry award and the Labour Appellate Tribunal decision will not be subject to cost of living index adjustment.

APPENDIX No. X

Alternative scheme for classification of banks

The deficiencies of the present scheme of classification on the basis of working funds could be removed by certain readjustment of the prescribed limit for each class, which will eliminate border line cases and make each class more homogeneous and also quite distinct by itself. This would be apparent from the graph attached which shows quite definite clusters of banks at certain levels of working capital, dividing limits for which are somewhat different from those existing at present. Though the Commission has decided not to change the present limits for the different classes of banks, a possible alternative scheme for classification based on refixation of the limits prescribed by the Sastry and Labour Appellate Tribunals and also on the dividing levels of the distinct groupings as observed in the graph is given below:

Group	Banks having working fund of
A	Rs. 20 crores and above in the case of Indian banks and all foreign banks,
B	less than Rs. 20 crores but not below Rs. 6 crores,
C	less than Rs. 6 crores but not below Rs. 2 crores,
D	less than Rs. 2 crores.

Of course, even the above regrouping would not obviate the necessity for dealing with special cases which arise on account of reasons other than disparities in working funds, e.g. displaced banks and banks incorporated in the Travancore-Cochin State etc. According to this reclassification as per the attached list the following changes would be made in the grouping.

Out of the 89 banks which submitted replies to the questionnaire there will be one addition in the A class from B class viz., the Indian Bank. The number of banks in the B class would still remain the same after the Bank of Jaipur which is at present in the C class is promoted to the B class on account of the regrouping. This class would thus include banks with working funds between about Rs. 7 crores and Rs. 15 crores which would not constitute such a wide range as before. The C class would be composed of 11 banks with working funds ranging from Rs. 2·5 crores to Rs. 5·5 crores and would include almost all banks in this class which have been paying dividends. Since 12 of the present C class banks would be relegated to the D class, the number of the latter would be increased from 37 to 49 so as to include all banks with working funds below Rs. 2 crores.

This chart has been appended to the report to indicate how even after adopting the basis accepted by the tribunals it would be possible to avoid disparities amongst the constituents of any given class.
